1 Introduction

1.1 Acknowledgements

NCVO thank all those involved in the development of the directories of HR service provision. In particular, we are grateful to the individuals and organisations that took part in the surveys, shared their local knowledge of HR service provision so generously, and agreed to be featured in one or more of the directories and NAVCA and Business Link South East and East of England for publicising this project through their networks.

NCVO also thanks MD Management Development who were commissioned to undertake the mapping of HR services work.

NCVO thank Capacitybuilders for funding this work.

1.2 Copyright and legal disclaimer

NCVO's regional directories of HR service provision benefit from material that has been provided from a range of organisations and individuals.

Whilst considerable care has been taken to ensure this information is both accurate and relevant, neither NCVO nor MD Management Development can be held responsible for any action an individual or organisation takes, or fails to take, as a result of this information. The information contained in this document is provided for information only and does not constitute advice or any sort of recommendation with regard to the nature or quality of the services provided by any individual or organisation that may appear in the directory. Nor does this directory claim to offer an exhaustive list of HR service providers.

This publication may be quoted in any form (written, visual, electronic, or audio) without the express permission of NCVO, provided the content quoted does not amount to a whole chapter or section, and provided that any and all references are fully attributed to NCVO and this publication.

1.3 Foreword

There are over 171,000 voluntary organisations in the UK, employing 668,000 people, of whom 68% are female and 37% are employed part-time¹. NCVO research has shown that two-thirds of voluntary and community organisations do not have a dedicated HR function² and only around one-third of infrastructure organisations offer support on HR strategy and workforce planning³. However, we also know that there is continuing demand from third sector organisations for employment and HR advice and support, particularly as employment law changes so frequently.

NCVO have developed directories to help make it easier for third sector employers to find the appropriate HR services at the local, regional or national level.

The entries in each directory will make clear how you can contact the service provider, their location and the geographical region(s) they serve. Most importantly, each entry will identify the key HR services that each provider offers, so you are able to make informed decisions about which providers to contact.

We hope you find this directory a helpful starting point in improving your HR management. We welcome your feedback to help develop and improve this resource.

1.4 How to use this directory

Infrastructure organisations, support providers, frontline organisations and HR service providers were invited to contribute to the creation of these directories via an online survey.

The survey captured information on where providers are based, which regions they work in and the services they offer. Whilst the primary focus was on HR service provision some providers indicated that they offer other services and these have also been included in their entry where appropriate.

This directory is a non-exhaustive list of HR services providers which serve the East Midlands region. Some providers are based within the region itself but many are not. Some provide services to this region only while others provide services to more than one region or nationally. This is highlighted in each entry. Entries are ordered alphabetically by organisation name.

The regions used are those which appear on the government office network website (www.gos.gov.uk) and are commonly used by most national infrastructure organisations.
